

Call for applications: A short training (continuous professional development) course in diagnosis of vector-borne and transboundary livestock diseases of veterinary importance

The University of Zambia, School of Veterinary Medicine is calling for applications for a short training course in "Diagnosis of vector-borne and transboundary livestock diseases of veterinary importance" to run from 1st May to 28th July, 2018 at the University of Zambia, Samora Machel School of Veterinary medicine in Lusaka, Zambia.

Eligibility and Qualification criteria:

1. Suitably qualified Veterinary, Para veterinary and biomedical professionals and postgraduate students from the Southern African Development Community (SADC) region.
2. Applicants must have a minimum of a Diploma in biomedical sciences or related fields
3. Females are encouraged to apply.

Interested applicants should send their details using the attached application form (<https://www.dropbox.com/s/ku1apm3n5b9df0t/SANBio2018.pdf?dl=0>), to the undersigned, enclosing detailed curriculum vitae, copies of certificates (minimum being a Diploma) and contact details, including a functional email address and their contact numbers not later than 25th April 2018 to the undersigned:

Contact

Prof. K.S. Nalubamba (Email: kshimumbo@yahoo.com; dean-vet@unza.zm)

Dr. Ethel M'kandawire (Email: ethelmkandawire@yahoo.com; ethel.mkandawire@unza.zm)

Dr. Nozyechi Chidumayo (Email: nozyechic@gmail.com; nozyechi.chidumayo@unza.zm).

For more information contact dean-vet@unza.zm and ethel.mkandawire@unza.zm

NB: Only shortlisted candidates will have their applications acknowledged